Spain at War

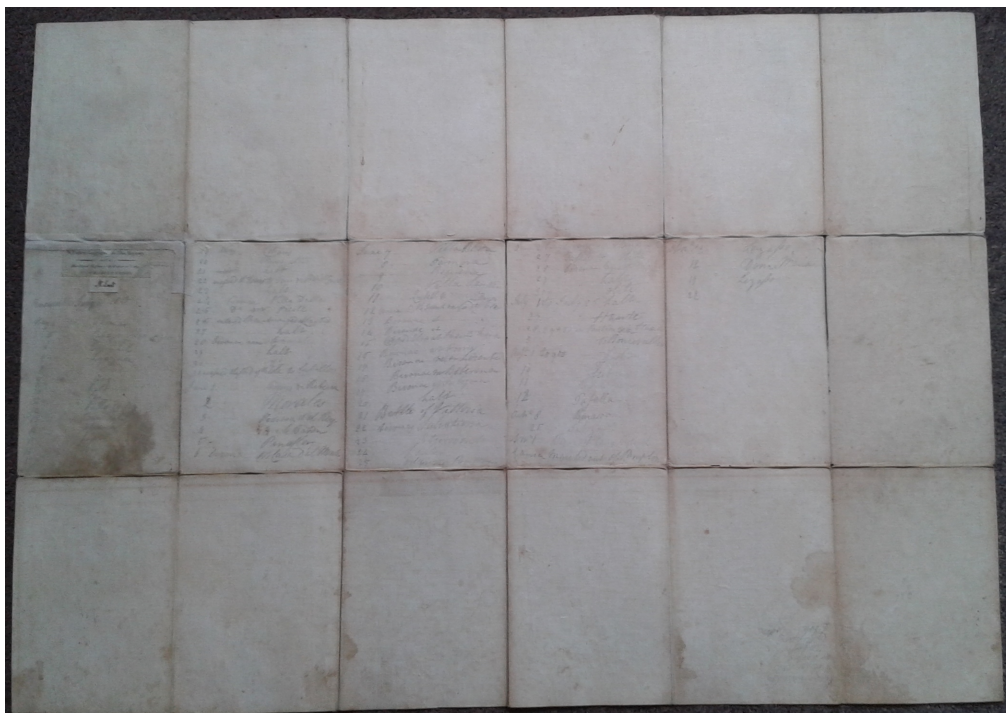

[Spanish Civil War].

SPANISH RATION COUPONS.

Three sheets of Spanish Ration Coupons: Malaga 1942, Zamora 1942, La Coruna 1941.

Featuring "heroes" of the Spanish Civil War (Nationalist cause) e.g. Joaquin Garcia-Morato (1904-1939), the leading nationalist fighter ace of the Civil War. One of his aeroplanes was the Italian Fiat CR32 (as shown).
Three sheets. £150.00

RARE SURVIVING WITNESS OF THE PENINSULAR WAR

Jasper Nantiat.

MAP OF SPAIN AND PORTUGAL. Published by W. Faden, London, 1810, two folding sheets only (of the four that were produced), showing the route taken by troops across Northern Spain in 1813, with pencil manuscript itinerary on the verso of one sheet. 810mm x 580mm each.

Fragile, and with some crude repairs on the hinges.

£1,500.00

First entry is Roncesvalles July 31st 1813, suggesting the details were drawn up on this date.

May 4th	Tomar
5th	Alvaizere?
6th	Espinhal...
12th	Villa Cortez
14th	Alverca...
20th	Muxagata
22nd	crossed the Douro to Torre Monteorvo
24th	bivouac Villadelha
25th	bivouac near Picote
26th	entered Spain bivouac at Castro
28th	bivouac near Carvajales
31st	crossed the ford of the Esla to Cubillos...
...June 2nd	Morales de Toro
3rd	Pedrosa del Rey
4th	Torrelobaton
5th	Penaflor...
10th	Villa Sandine
12th	cannoned the French rearguard near Burgos...
15th	crossed the Ebro at Puente de Arenas...
18th	bivouac near Berberana
21st	Battle of Vitoria
22nd	Salvatierra
25th	near Pamplona
27th	Tafalla & Olite
28th	Carcastillo
July 1st to July 26th	halt
27th	Huarte
28, 29 & 30	in position near Huarte
31st	to Roncesvalles...
...Nov 1	French garrison marched out of Pamplona

Dates then become sketchy. It appears that our route follows more or less that of General Rowland Hill's column of the allied army in the advance on Vitoria (see Ian Robertson, An Atlas of the Peninsular War, Yale 2010).

Contemporary maps and notes such as these are rare. Luggage would be kept to the minimum, so the two southern maps would have been discarded as irrelevant.

AN HISTORICAL ENQUIRY INTO THE UNCHANGEABLE CHARACTER OF A WAR IN SPAIN. 1837, London, John Murray, pp76, pamphlet, stitched as issued. Published anonymously, this is undoubtedly one of Ford's scarcest works; see Robertson, p155. "Shortly after the Parliamentary debate on Spanish Affairs of 10 March 1837 on the motion of Lord Mahon, Ford was asked to write an article concerning the continuing British military presence on the side of María Cristina of Spain. This he did, unwillingly, although knowing it would add Tory fuel to the fire in the heated controversy then raging. An Historical Enquiry...was unquestionably one of Ford's most trenchantly written pieces, a forceful assault on Palmerston's The Policy of England Towards Spain, exposing the folly of foreign intervention in the Carlist war, buttressing his prose with a wealth of time-proven evidence". Very good.

AUTOGRAPH LETTER, SIGNED, TO "MY DEAR HOWARD", FROM THE FOREIGN OFFICE, 20TH AUGUST 1834. 1834, 4pp, 4to, signed "Palmerston". Sold with an engraved portrait. A frank and personal letter, probably to Kenneth Alexander Howard, who served in the Peninsula, and later joined the Privy Council, "...till we actually declare war against Carlos...we could not legally turn away a British Merchantman laden with arms for Zumalacarreguy". "They say P. Charles of Naples is deficient in some qualities which Donna Maria might consider essential in a husband, and that the race would not be multiplied by his means". "I cannot believe that Miguel will try his hand again in Portugal but if he does, we shall not give him a second passage out of it." Under the Premiership of Charles, Earl Grey, Palmerston was appointed as Secretary of State for Foreign Affairs in 1830; a post he held until 1841. Folded, and with one or two tears but no loss. Sold with a 4to black and white photogravure portrait of Palmerston after John Watkins with a facsimile signature. £225.00
